ON ITALY'S FIRING LINE.

Produced By Selig Polyscope Company

"On Italy's Firing Line" is the title of what will prove one of the most deservingly interesting war films yet shown in the United States. The scenes depicted are those of the army of Italy, and in the advance through the Alps toward the Austrian frontier.

The scenes of warfare shown are most realistic. Artillery duels; bursting shrapnel and shells; soldiers charging through barbed wire entanglements in actual conflict; life in the advance trenches; scouts scaling seemingly almost impassable mountain heights, and other details, which present in a most vivid way what war really means.

"On Italy's Firing Line" is, without a doubt, the most sensational war picture yet received from the European battle fronts. This picture is also among the first showing in detail, the engagements in which the Italian troops participate.
